Wool. Lots of it. Cheap, rugged, and warm when wet. I got a pair of fingerless ragwool gloves for 8 bucks and have been wearing them all winter.

A windbreaking wading jacket, as well as a few fleece layers are nice too. I bought a full facemask once in erie, but I'm never fishing in that kind of cold again. I'll wait for it to be warm enough for exposed skin before I go fishing from now on.
