

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Lead

Re: Lead

Author: : ryguyfi

Date: : 2008/12/29 11:31:14

URL:

In the above post, it mentioned "try fishing your shot". Now if you're putting shot above both flies trying to bring them down to the fish, and thus having your 2 flies trail at a slightly higher level than the shot, do you ever extend your leader to make up for this loss in length? I figure if you're fishing a 8' leader in 5 feet of water with a current, you would have to extend it a bit to get the proper level for your flies... just wondering if anyone does this?