I received "Carp on the fly" by brad beefus and dave barry for christmas and am currently reading it. I've had minimal sucess with carp fly fishing in the past. Hoping this book will reveal some usefull techniques. It has recipes for carp fly patterns which I'm about to start tying as soon as I replenish my trout flies. A few years ago I accidentally hooked one while nymphing. It sped downstream and got me into my backing before I could even begin to think about how to react. What a rush! After that I couldn't ditch that feeling. Every july and august I take time to pursue them. Looking forward to it this summer. If anyone here is interested in trying it pm me.
