Jack, check the PFBC web site for more info on the nasties, they think that transfer is a problem, though I don't know of any proof that you eliminate the risk with something other than felt. The talk is to eliminate ALL semi porous material, apparently anything that is single celled can be moved from stream to stream. The other thing is we all pay a price for the stupidity of others. If we can't learn from history we are doomed to repeat it.
