Thanks dave1432, I may have some questions for you once I get into it, but that won't really happen until the trout fishing slows down this summer. I've actually been able to hook them intentionally several times over the years but never landed one on the fly yet. They break me off every time. Its got to be good practice for landing very large trout though right? Used to fish for them all the time when I was a kid with corn on very light spinning rods....what a rush! I remember the dissapproving head shakes of older fisherman when they saw what we were catching. I don't think most of them knew what they were missing. You just can't get the same experience from much smaller bass and trout.
