

Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : carp

Re: carp

Author: : Maurice

Date: : 2009/2/5 22:34:49

URL:

Once on a slow day of stream bass fishing with a fly rod I came upon a mud plume and discovered a carp at the head of it. I watched for a while as he moved through this shallow part of the Conowago creek near York. I got a little devious and thought I would circle around to the upstream side of him and drift a fly past him. A few tries didn't get his interest. Then I put a crayfish pattern on and cast it a few feet past and above him and then twitched it along the bottom till it passed his head. He moved a foot toward me and then ran like hell. My drag sung for about 4 seconds and then it snapped off.

It was exhilarating!