

Subject: : Print, Video, Audio Discussions

Topic: : Pocket Guide to Pennsylvania Hatches

Re: Pocket Guide to Pennsylvania Hatches

Author: : tabasco_joe

Date: : 2009/2/9 11:17:41

URL:

Quote:

rscheckler wrote:

If you have the chance, can you compare the hatches in the book to your personal notes to see how accurate they are? I have seen other hatch books but they never seem to be accurate.

The book is a "super set" for the whole state. My personal notes on Penns are limited since I have only fly fished a few years. I was working with Bruce Fisher of Penns Creek Angler on my own Penns list. Bruce lives on Penns and has fished it for many years. He has a great collection of pictures and has flies tied for his shop with patterns "tuned" for Penns.

Here is a link for his shop <http://www.pennscreekanangler.com/>

Bruce has spent many hours on unfishable days in his shop showing me flies, rod making, and talking local fishing spots and techniques. He has a wealth of knowledge on Penns and the other local mountain streams.

BTW I just noticed he has a Penns hatch chart on his WEB site now. My plan was not only to create the chart but tie up a set of patterns for each hatch on the chart.