

Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : Selecting a rod to build

Re: Selecting a rod to build

Author: : MKern

Date: : 2007/3/8 17:37:42

URL:

Big John,

I just built a Cabela's IM7 kit. it was $65, but it was snake guides. I prefer single foot guides, but I don't know why. The kits are a great deal, plus they come with epoxy, finish, thread and brushes. They do come with instruction, but they suck--just throw them away. If you get the GL3 kit, upgrade to the primium kit. It was single foot guides, woven grafite real seat, better handle, and better thread.