Thanks for a thorough treatment about midges. I pretty much use variations on the Griffith Gnat. Sometimes a Philadelphia Lawyer works too. BTW, Tom may not want to plug his company's products, but I've standardized on the Orvis Bigeye hooks. The straight eye makes for a wider effective hook gap. I'll often bend the hook in the vise a few degrees. Depending on my angle to the trouts, I might use a left handed or a right handed hook.
