In a project that took me several months to complete; I have mapped, researched, logged and categorized and charted all of the Class A, Wilderness and Special Regulation streams by location; type (section of AT or trib) in the following counties:

Delaware, Chester, Bucks, Berks, Montgomery, Lancaster, Lebanon, Northampton, Lehigh, Luzerne, Lackawanna, Pike, Wayne, Monroe, Schuylkill, Center, Dauphin, Northumberland, Clinton, Potter, Tioga, York, Perry, Adams, Franklin, Cumberland, Susquehanna, Sullivan, Wyoming, Carbon, and Lycoming and portions of nine other counties.

My results are identical to OhioOutdoorsman. It IS a section thing as he described and as I pointed out in the other thread. Unfortunately also like he said, there are a lot of adjacent sections stocked but good luck ever trying to get that changed. Pine Creek with miles and miles of stocked water has a Class A section in Potter. Could you imagine them not stocking Pine?

Whether the state stocks sections that COULD be Class A to appease local interests is all speculative but like everybody else; I too wonder when I fish places like the Monocasy Creek AT in Bethlehem and can count less than 5 stockers in 20 years of fishing that stretch!
