So, you noticed all that, too? LOL!

When painting the shed the other day, a yellow jacket came flying out of a hole and nailed me right on the lip. It surprised me that it didn't hurt much at all. I mean, at first I was wondering if it actually stung me or not, but after a few seconds I could tell. It was actually kind of disappointing. 😊

On the other hand, honey bee stings cause me to swear a lot and break into an interpretive dance.
