

Subject: : Fly Tying

Topic: : march brown & gray fox

Re: march brown & gray fox

Author: : beeber2

Date: : 2007/3/14 14:19:41

URL:

No more Stenonema fuscum (Gray Fox). Stenonema fuscum (Gray Fox) is now considered to be the same as Stenonema vicarium (March Brown). This makes perfect sense to me, for years I've been puzzled by these insects a March Brown looked identical to a Gray Fox except for size and a slight color difference. Hey now with new DNA testing I don't have to worry about it anymore, they have been found to be exactly the same insect except for a difference in color.

<http://www.jerryhadden.com/newnames/explain.html>