

---

Subject: : Print, Video, Audio Discussions

Topic: : First trout fishing book?

Re: First trout fishing book?

Author: : simfective

Date: : 2009/3/9 13:09:07

URL:

My first was Matching the Hatch by Schweibert purchased around 1968-69 Still have it. Paid $4.99 first edition 1955 MaCMILLAN Publishers. This book was and still is my reference to insect study along with Nymphs first edition 1973 Winchester Press.

Ernie's Nymphs I & II are excellent references with some great reading on fishing also. Yes I was a great fan of Ernie, never had the chance to meet him, but did call him once inviting him to a seminar at the local flyshop. We had great conversation about fishing my home waters here in Ohio. In Nymphs he mentions fishing a Tiny Lead-Winged Red Quill (Centroptillum rufostrigatum) on the headwaters of the Mad River, and it's arteries such as Cedar Creek and Piatt Creek known as Macachee Creek. I was very thrilled talking to him about trout waters where I grew up fishing and had no idea of him being there.

I was very sad the day of his passing. He was my mentor and he will be missed. Thanks simfective

Finandfeather, please check your PMs.