You are asking me to prove a negative to explain why I don't think the streams in the categories you identify are fragile, nor the fish. I cannot really do that other than to say I have never seen evidence or heard argument that convinced me that they are.

I think, as Tom says, that people (and yourself) confuse the concept of fragility with that of preciousness. A diamond may be precious, but it is hardly fragile. At the same time, an icicle is fragile, but is hardly precious.
