

Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : flourocarbon tippet

Re: flourocarbon tippet

Author: : crs5942

Date: : 2009/3/10 20:04:07

URL:

I understand that the refractive index doesn't come into play when the fluoro is on top; however, I've had days where I fished terrestrials on mono, could not get a hit, then changed only the tippet and started catching the fish that refused my fly previously. Maybe my tippet was sinking just enough that it became invisible but didn't create drag problems. Either way, I've had fish refuse the same dry fly and then take it once I switched to fluoro. I spent my college years studying science, but sometimes things cannot be explained by science alone.