So I started fly fishing about 3 years ago. For the first year the extent of my fly fishing included throwing poppers at bluegill and bass. I have dabbled with fishing for trout with a fly rod and have been successful nabbing some natives on green weenies and the occasional stocked trout on a woolly bugger. The problem is, I have never really had any sustained success with flies for trout (aside from the two flies mentioned above). I will be fishing some streams here in somerset county this fall for some newly stocked trout and then traveling to the Great Smokies early in November. I was just hoping to get some suggestions (both fly and technique) to get me started this fall. Thanks a million!
