I do flies on the cheap myself. Orvis has had some nicely discounted flies recently. The other online stores also have cheap flies. I bought the Cabelas starter kit about four or five years ago. Most material lasts a really long time. I still have all the buck tails and will for a long time as it goes a long way.

Also, I pick up tons of stuff at flea markets/yard sales and the like. You can score some old craft material that is built much better than the new material. The discount craft stores are also good.

Currently, the bulk of my material comes from Orvis and local fly shops. Most are reasonable and offer a wide variety. There are many options so you should shop around whether you buy or tie.

Cheers,
