
Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : rattlers

Re: rattlers

Author: : Lebo_Fish

Date: : 2009/4/1 22:55:10

URL:

Sandfly, I'm surprised you haven't seen any. They're common along the Pine Creek trail between Tiadaghton and Darling Run. I was amused last August by some tourist bike riders looking at some as if they were behind glass.

The area I most commonly see rattlesnakes is down Slate Run.

The best advice is to stay alert, cause if you're fishing a stream like slate run and you get hit, the walk is long, steep and the only thing a cell phone is gonna be good for is getting yourself on video saying goodbye.

Love the gun talk though. Draw and fire before a rattler nails ya. Sounds like a good test for the mythbusters....lol

3rd Party Hosting has been temporarily disabled.

to unlock your account visit:

photobucket.com/p500

3rd Party Hosting has been temporarily disabled.

to unlock your account visit:

photobucket.com/p500

3rd Party Hosting has been temporarily disabled.

to unlock your account visit:

photobucket.com/p500

3rd Party Hosting has been temporarily disabled.

to unlock your account visit:

photobucket.com/p500