Overrated based on what? Toughness? Hatches? Water-type? Wild trout? We should include the reasons WHY we think a stream is over-rated and our qualifications to say so. For example, I can't offer an opinion on the majority of Spruce Creek b/c I've only fished the PSU section (but I do suspect the trout are largely pellet-heads. .)

I've fished each of the following at least a dozen times:

Big Pine Creek (downstream from Blackwell) - I've fished Pine extensively for going on 20 years. Hatches are average, most trout are stocked due to high summer water temps. If it wasn't a favorite destination of my group of friends I probably wouldn't go back.

Little Lehigh - Crowded, average hatches, water-type is largely unappealing except for a few parts of the Heritage Section, Al's Rat is the "best" fly???

Yellow Breeches - "The Run" is the best water?? Yow.

Tully - Water type is best described as a slow-moving, glass-surfaced canal with almost no structure, it's crowded, what hatches?
