Huh, I had never heard the Tully to be a destination. The point is that if someone tells me its a well stocked fishery and that's what I find...I would not call it overrated. Now after the last few years of hearing about the upper end, as I have on here, and fished it and found it to be much the same as the lower end I would be disappointed and feel it overrated. But since there are really no real "ratings" to go by its all really kind of silly isn't it?
