I'm probably going to take some flack here but why not start out fishing bait on your fly rod?
the old timers who taught me how to control a fly rod all used bait, red worms, minnows (strung up with a notched needle) , wax worms, crickets (live) it's just a suggestion, you will catch fish so you won't be bored and you will learn how to control a fly rod, eventually you will be drawn to fly fishing i'm sure, and when you get good at that you will probably abandon the bait , but it sure is a great way to begin to learn.
