I hope you guys just solved my mystery. I started fly fishing in the middle of May last year. The stream that's about 5 min from my house I used to fish at atleast once a week when I started out. Durring the end of may and most of june the fish in one particular spot used to feed exclusively from about 6pm till dark. I never saw anything on the surface but I might not have been looking hard enough for a size 26 fly, and most of the action seemed subsurface now that I recall it. I'm def going to try some midges this year and hope that solves my problem. Thanks for the info. 2 more weeks here till opening day. I hope I can get away from my 3 jobs to go out.
