

Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : Bad Spawn?

Re: Bad Spawn?

Author: : Fishidiot

Date: : 2009/5/7 7:50:10

URL:

Afish,

Thanks. That's re-assuring. The Maryland DNR is already concerned about the upper Potomac (which I fish more than the Susky these days) having a sub-par spawn. I wonder about the Juniata watershed which, of course, drains an area which has seen a lot more rain. Perhaps Raystown Lake can control some of the high flows in that watershed. Anyway, we'll hope for the best.

Mo,

You make a good point. If it's not high water, it's low water - sheesh. 😊