Hey all,

Yesterday two of my buddies and I headed out to really challenge ourselves and pursue our first wild trout...

Without question, this was one of the greatest decisions we have ever made.

Wild trout are some of the most challenging fish I have ever tried to catch on fly. So much so, my nickname is now "Spooky" for my uncanny ability to spook wild trout from great distances.

Despite the nickname, this was a great challenge for all three of us. We were shocked by the ability of even the smallest trout to spot us from surprisingly long distances.

With that said, does anyone have any tips or suggestions for pursuing wild trout? From approaching the hole to presenting the fly, how do you guys like to pursue this incredibly rewarding experience?

Tight lines.
