

Subject: : Conservation

Topic: : Relief From Rhododendron

Re: Relief From Rhododendron

Author: : TimMurphy

Date: : 2007/4/5 17:30:50

URL:

Dear RLeeP,

Believe it or not, there is also considerable debate as to whether the Driftless area streams ever contained a native brook trout population to begin with.

Some people, and not just wingnuts, hold to the theory that the brook trout in the Driftless were introduced from NE Iowa or SE Minnesota. There is an active debate about poisoning the streams to remove the browns, and many people seem to have evidence that the brook trout were also introduced to the region.

Regards,

Tim Murphy 