Yeah I'm with sandfly on this one. I have hooks streighten out without bending them let alone when I do bend them. In my opinion it will make them too weak especially if you hook onto a decent sized fish. I do like the Dai-Riki caddis curve hooks because they are off set but I honestly can't say it makes all that much of a difference for me in hook ups. A lot of its a mental thing too, if you think it'll catch you more fish then a lot of the times it'll help you out...confidence is everything when it comes to fishing.
