

Subject: : Conservation

Topic: : State Park Closings?

Re: State Park Closings?

Author: : franklin

Date: : 2009/6/2 8:00:59

URL:

Quote:

JackM wrote:

Despite all the complaints of crowds on streams, the majority of anglers fish lakes, plus other recreational interest can be accomodated. I prefer to fish streams myself, but it bugs the heck out of me when people speak as if all flowing water must be preserved for the trout angler. There are so many trout waters in that area, it would earn a lot of Karma to just allow a lake or two to exist for the other 90% of license buyers.

I own a fishing boat and have enjoyed many lakes in state parks. I appreciate the recreational value of lakes. The lake on Poe Paddy is a contributor to the warming on the lower narrows section of Penns. It probably shouldn't be there. Take R. B. Winter State Park. It has a small lake that stays cold and actually holds some trout all year. This one compliments it's environment and doesn't trade off downstream water quality.