And if all fly fishers/conservationists felt like you Jack, that force would be there....but they don't thank goodness....I bet if wild trout streams were ice cubes you would feel differently. I guess in a weird twisted sort of way you are a cold water conservationist. Well frozen anyway. 🍷

Bottom line is you have nothing invested in wild trout except the gas to get there so it is not surprising how you feel about the resource you exploit with no return.

To you wild trout streams are alot like kleenexes that can be tossed away after their uses....or used until no good anymore and then move onto another.
