I fish 2 or 3 nymphs any time I am nymphing. I now tie from the bend of the hook all the time as I did not see any difference in hook-up rate. First fly is normally a soft hackle of some sort, then a bead head green weenie, then a non-soft hackle nymph. With the exception of the green weenie I try to match the available forage. If I need additional weight I normally add it between the first and second fly. Dropper length is normally about 20". Will on occasion use floating indicator, but most often I build them into my leader with amnesia red & stren gold.
