I've been tying two nymphs and a wet in the space of about 2' to 3' of tippet alot lately.

Usually, the heaviest fly is on the bottom, either a prince or a hare's ear. After that comes a small uncased caddis, and then my wet's either been a peacock and partridge or a black pennell.

About a foot above that I'll use a torn piece of foam strike indicator just so I can follow where my line is.

The first two flies would be hanging off the main tippet via surgeon's loops that let them stick out about 1-2" the last fly is clinch knotted on.
