Get some real experience before you pop off. It's becoming blantly obviously that you've never hooked into anything other than a lethargic hatchery raised trout that was just stocked 15 minutes ago. You probably couldn't even get close enough to wild trout to, "handline hi"

500+ four pounds or bigger trout-everyone wild and green weenie is giving me advice-okay

yeah-I lost a few but the three foot mono tippet will reduce your lost considerably-

I lost a salmon when it took me by surprise-jumped way out of the water.

not many that I can recall but I broke in in the time when ultra lite was a fad so I have always tended to fish that way.
