my fav combo is either a stimulator or big bushy adams with a hares ear dropper, at least while searching for fish. amazes me what hits the dropper and where!!! sometimes in places you would never think a fish would be. royal trudes, coachmans, humpys, all good hi-viz flies that produce. of course, if somethings hatching, gotta try to match it if fish are feeding!!

for slow water, I like a parachute adams, they seem to land a little more gentle on the water. good luck!!! as for your leader, 5x seems good, I rarely use smaller, you might want a little more length though. I usually use a 9-10 foot leader unless on tight streams, then sometimes as short as 6 ft
